Newsletter - October 2009

President's Report

As I write at the end of third term, there's a definite feel of "spring" in the air. I feel as though I've been hibernating after the flurry of Admella activity.

I thoroughly enjoyed the Murder, Mystery, Musical that was Portland Secondary College's "Death at Midnight". Directed by student Grace Warren, supported by Ashley Elijah and Brian Healy as producer and Musical director, it was a crowd pleaser. It was great to see the CEMA costume dept receiving credit for the support it gave for the production.

While executive was meeting this month I was involved with St John's school activity with visiting performers Bushwahzee. The threesome of folk musicians arrived in the morning for a concert and workshops and by early evening had students performing songs and dances of a bygone era. The new Portland Civic Hall floor certainly had a workout with more than 300 people up set dancing at one point. I had a flashback to an amazing "Bushwackers" dance I went to once in the seventies at the Showgrounds in Melbourne! Felix Maher started the morning by playing a plastic school recorder. I think the "status" of the humble recorder was raised to a new level for some of the audience!

I enjoyed a quick visit to the new tea rooms in the old Uniting Church Manse in Percy St. Congratulations to those members who are exhibiting work there.

Please note that the regular Costume Department hours will resume in the School term. Carmel will be available by appointment only during the second week of the holidays.

Enjoy your arts.

Membership Secretary's Report

Thanks to a couple of good friends paying their membership at Film Night on Saturday we have 100 paid up members. This is better than same time last year. The October newsletter will be the final one for those who have not rejoined. It makes our job much easier if payment is made prior to October as farm activities are hectic in November.

Portland Upwelling Festival 2009

31 October 2009 (9am - 7pm)

Portland Foreshore will come alive and 'well up' with excitement with this new festival concept - celebrating the unique features of our beautiful coastal town.

The Portland Tourist Association, in partnership with the Glenelg Shire Council, have reinvigorated and revitalised the Festival with a new vision based on the Bonney Upwelling. The Bonney Upwelling is the epic natural ocean occurrence that powers a seven month (November to May) feeding frenzy of tuna, crayfish, giant crabs, squid, fish, seabirds, seals, krill and blue whales. An incredibly rich ecological food web, the Upwelling is at its greatest off the coast of Portland and is the cornerstone of our lucrative local fishing and tourism industry. The Endangered blue whale is the signature species of the Bonney Upwelling.

9am - Blessing of the Fishing Fleet on the trawler wharf
10am - Upwelling Street Parade, Bentinck St
10am to 5pm - Upwelling Markets
11am to 6pm - local entertainment on two stages throughout the day
6pm to 7pm - Final act on main stage

ALL DAY - The main feature will be five life size blue whales in five different art mediums designed by local and Melbourne artists with assistance from the Portland community. Come and see the five massive 25 metre blue whales blow - there will be an inflatable whale, a giant puppet whale, a floating fishing net whale, an aluminium whale and a sand castle

Poetry Grand Slam

Glenelg Libraries is pleased to be hosting Heat 5 of Poetry Slam 2009. Portland was chosen by the State Library of Victoria to be one of only 3 Victorian Country heats of the Slam. Spoken-word artist Emilie-Zoey Baker will be our host for the Slam.

We invite everyone from Year 7 up to 100 years of age to compose a piece of original poetry and then speak, scream, howl, whisper or sing it at the live event to be held at Portland Arts Centre on Wednesday 7th October at 6.30 pm. Registration at 6 pm. The Heat has a limit of 20 poets, so don't be late.

In the Australian Poetry Slam we really want to encourage people to get up on stage with whatever piece of original writing they have, and perform in whatever style they want, but without musical accompaniment or props.

Each person has two minutes to get up on stage and wow the audience with anything they can think of that has been written within the last 12 months. Judges are chosen randomly from the audience, and hold up scorecards ranked from one to ten for each performance. The winner collects a $100 prize and goes through to the next round which will be held in Melbourne in November.
